SECTION I

INTRODUCTION

1. Purpose and Scope

This pamphlet is for the use of training instructors, I&E leaders, and other film users of the Regular Army and civilian Reserves. It lists both classified and unclassified approved Department of the Army motion picture films and film strips, and phono-recordings available for use in training and information programs.

2. Security Classification of Films

The security classification of each classified film is included in the pertinent data given in the numerical index, section III. Titles of such films, if unclassified, are followed by (U).

3. How to Locate Films

a. First Turn to Table of Contents on Pages 1 Through 4.

- (1) To locate films by branch of service or other major category, refer to the category index, section II of the table of contents.
- (2) If the exact release number of a film is known, refer to the numerical index, section III of the table of contents.
- (3) If the exact title of the film is known, refer to the alphabetical index, section IV of the table of contents.

b. The Numerical Index Provides Complete Information on Each Film. This includes a synopsis and other pertinent data. The category index and the alphabetical index give cross-reference page numbers where the synopsis for each film can be found in the numerical index.

4. How to Borrow Films and Equipment

a. Regular Army and Reserve units must fill out DA Form 11-44 (Films and Film Strips Loan Order) to borrow films and film strips from Army film and equipment exchanges by local pickup or by mail order.

b. Regular Army and Reserve units that do not have projection equipment on hand must fill out DA Form 11-43 (Projection Equipment Loan Order) to borrow projection equipment for films and film strips from their respective Army film and equipment exchanges.

5. Army Film and Equipment Exchange Services

The following services are available:

a. Loans of film and equipment, including motion pictures, sound film strips, silent film strips, Department of the Army phono-recordings, and appropriate equipment, as required.

b. Advisory services, such as recommending appropriate films for training and information programs, proper utilization of films in training, and advising instructors on professional exhibition techniques.

c. Literature, such as film references, periodic film announcements, and special announcements on pertinent films.

d. Courses for training and licensing unit projectionists of the Regular Army and civilian Reserves.

e. Loans of films cleared for public nonprofit, television and theatrical exhibition to appropriate civilian organizations and professional groups.

f. Maintenance of Department of the Army films rescored into foreign languages for aiding foreign allied governments, for training foreign nationals, and for training in foreign languages.

6. Proper Use of Films

After selection of appropriate films for training and information programs, the film program should be carefully planned using the same steps used for other training techniques, i.e.—

a. Preparation. Preview the film to find out what is in it, using the appropriate film reference, if available. The instructor should select the key points of emphasis, the items which may be omitted or touched upon lightly, and the portions that are obsolete or require explanation. Arrange in advance for projectionist, film, and equipment. Reserve the classroom, theater with ample seating capacity, effective blackout provisions, and an electrical outlet for the projector.

b. Presentation. Have proper ventilation, then introduce the film in the most effective manner that will prepare the audience to observe the film to greatest advantage. Show the film.

c. Followup Activities. Carefully planned followup activities, such as discussions, an oral or written quiz, and practical applications, as appropriate, increase the effectiveness of training films. The contents of the film and the facilities available will determine the nature of the following exercises to be used.

d. References.

TF 11-1574—The Technique of Good Projection.

TF 11-1572—Film Tactics.

(Each film should be used individually to fit into appropriate lesson plans to teach a specific point of instruction. The series is not designed to be shown as a package.)

(2) Manual. FM 21-6—Techniques of Military Instruction.

SECTION II CATEGORY INDEX

7. General

Use this index to locate films for training and information programs. It is broken down in 32 main categories (such as branches of service or other major breakdowns) and a number of subdivisions in certain of the larger categories. See table of contents on pages 1 through 4, for locating major categories and subcategories. This is the important functional index for film users. Use the numerical index, section III, only if the exact release number of a film is known and further film information is required. Use the alphabetical index, section IV, only if the exact title of a film is known.

SECTION IV

ALPHABETICAL INDEX OF FILM TITLES

65. General

a. Use this index only when the exact title of a film is known. Motion pictures and film strips are listed in this section alphabetically by titles. In this index the words, "A," "An," and "The," are not used as the first word of any title. For example, the title "The Army Engineer" is indexed under "Army Engineer." When the first word in a title is a number, it is indexed alphabetically as if the number were spelled out. For example, the title "90-mm Antiaircraft Gun—Part I," is listed under "N," as though the number were spelled, "Ninety-mm."

b. The following types of films have been omitted from this section since they have no specific titles:

Combat Bulletins

Staff Film Reports

Information on the above types of film is contained in the numerical index (section III) and the category index (section II).

c. Armed Forces Screen Magazines with no specific titles have been omitted from this section. Information on this type of film is contained in the numerical index (section III) and the category index (section II).

d. When the number of the film is obtained from this index, consult the numerical index for detailed information.
